Keynotes

Dr. Miguel Zapata

Universidad de Murcia, Spain

Web: <http://www.um.es/ead/mzapata/> and <http://www.um.es/ead>

E-Mail: mzapata@um.es

Keynote Title: “Scientific edition, a matter of colors and trends”

Abstract: The European Union has established a very ambitious and radical plan that should place the dissemination of research in the Knowledge Society. It is not based, as many will think, just to drive Open Access. Not even in, as newspaper headlines have said, to make scientific production fully accessible in open access. The real revolution is that scientific production is socially accessible by the scientific community in the research development phase, through the self-archives of authors, journals and institutions.

The important thing is not only quantity of citation, impact and visibility, which is a quantitative vision, but fundamentally a quality based on innovation. In this case in a gradation established according to the modalities of autoarchivo, preprints and data (open data). This is to encourage self-archiving before and after editing.

Bio: Miguel Zapata Ros (mzapata@um.es, <http://www.um.es/ead/mzapata/> and <http://www.um.es/ead>) PhD in Computer Engineering from the University of Alcalá de Henares.
